This fan-fiction article, Zutibor, was written by Witcher190 and Adalwulf of Aedirn. Please do not edit this fiction without the writers' permission.

Zutibor is a local legend, from the Gotland region, and a probably, mixed world with The Continent after the Conjunction of the Spheres. It is described as a place where the nature of the region changes and becomes more abundant, and its entrance is indicated by the statue to an unknown goddess, which the nordlings exiled there have interpreted as Melitele or Freya. While occult groups believe it could be Vesna, a third-generation Grigori associated with the teaching of the use of medicinal plants among some races such as the Vrans.

When one advances (This is where the legend begins to be mixed with supposed contacts of people with that world), it is said that, more ruins, partially consumed by nature, of incomprehensible aspect, are beginning to be found, together with creatures, also totally unknown to anyone. Some of these ruins look like labyrinths and others, seem to be protected by metallic beings, similar to golems, grouped in groups of 10.

After the Second Conjunction of the Spheres and the apparition of The Forged in The World, many scholars speculate that this legend could have some truth to it, and the world of these creatures would be this one. Which ended up crashing and destroying after the second clash of universes. While occultists simply believe that they were created by the Grigori and used in their war against the Nefandi, being abandoned after the end of the war in various spheres.
